

What I'd Like To Be When I Grow Up

- Wesley Li (L4) -

27th March 2008

There are many jobs in the world.

When I was three, I wanted to be a cashier.

When I was five,

I wanted to be a fireman.

Now I am nine, I want to be an architect. It seems I still do not have a clue as to which job best suits me. Yet right now, to be an architect is my dream job.

questions make me curious.

This idea hit me last year while I was playing downstairs. I saw my building and started to ask myself how people build tall buildings in the real world. Compared to a building, we are just like tiny ants. I then began to watch TV programmes and read books about building houses. Since then, many questions came to my mind, like how long it takes to build a house, how much it takes to build a house, how to make the building stable... etc. All these Besides, I have lots of ideas on designing buildings. Sometimes I wish I could build a building in the ocean, while other times I wish I could build a house under the earth's crust, too. Better still, it would be wonderful if I could build a castle flying in the air! In my wildest dreams, I even hoped to build a hotel in space!

I think being an architect will be a very good occupation for me.